Dear

Re: Please protect your local constituency post office

I am writing to you to ask that you help protect your local constituency post office.

I am concerned that without continued support from the Government as part of the Energy Bill Relief Scheme (EBRS), many post offices will find it extremely hard to stay open.

Customers such as myself rely on their local post offices. They help us stay connected, not only via their postal and banking services, but also as an important and much-valued community hub.

I appreciate everything my Postmaster and their staff did during the pandemic. In staying open, they allowed myself and my community a small sense of normality during a very turbulent time. Currently, my local post office is helping out again by making sure that millions of people are able to access the support Government is making available to them for their domestic energy bills every month.

I rely on my post office and want to ensure it stays open. For this, I ask you to write to the Secretary of State for Business and to the Chancellor of the Exchequer to request that the Energy Bill Relief Scheme support is kept in place for post offices beyond 31 March 2023.

Yours sincerely,
